The Sub-Treasury received $70,903; paid, $22,983; balance, $6,537,079. There were also $50,000 re-seived from Cincinnati. A custom has recently obtained here, by special permission of the Secretary of the Treasury, which is of great convenience to our importers. The money for duties on importations at lake ports, Chicago, Oswego, &c., is allowed to be paid into the Sub-Treasury here and the Sub-Treasur-er's receipt is received by the Collectors of those ports as specie. This is a saving of the risk and expense of transporting specie to and from those ports.

Mr. Cisco, in order to accommodate merchants importing railroad iron and other merchandise at the West, has cheerfully assumed the additional labor and responsibility of this arrangement. In addition to the resignations of Directors of the New-Haven Road previously announced, Messre. Ketcham, Sturgis, Phoenix, Blackstone, Worthen and Theyer resigned to day. The vacancies have been filled by the election of Moncure Robinson of Phila-delphia, Peter T. Homer of Boston, W. W. Billings of New-London, N. A. Bacon and Dennis Kimberley of New-Haven, G. W. Miller of New-York. Mr. Boardman, the acting President, holds on until the new managers are settled to their duties.

In connection with this statement, the fol efficial figures from the Liverpool Custom-House show a very marked decline of Exports to the United States during the past three mouths as compared with the same months of last year, and this decline con-tinued to the end of October in increasing proportion. The Imports up to August are probably all re-mitted for. The amount to be remitted is very much es than at this time last year, not only in regard to mantity, but also in regard to value:

We stated a few days since, in justice to Mr. Au ditor Dunn, of Indiana, that in a letter to The Louis-ville Journal he denied by implication that he had allowed any January coupons to be cut from the securities deposited in his office. We have seen a gendeman to-day, direct from Indianapolis, who informed se that to him Mr. Dunn admitted that he had autherized such coupons to be cut off, thus lesseming the securities held in trust for the public at the very crisis when they should have been increased. He also exessed his regret for having done so. In such times as these, no news is good news, and as far as we can learn, no new financial troubles at the West or South have occured. In this City small importance. Mesers. Selden, Withers & Co., it is understood, go on. From Chicago, we hear that the run on Mesers. George Smith & Co., which was never equal to the reports, had almost subsided, and their deposits were larger than before it began. The Chicago Tribune says, that the City Bank (Mesers. Breadley, Curis & Co.) expect to be able to result. Bradley, Curis & Co.) expect to be able to resume business in a few days, and that they state their full ability to pay everything. The Union Bank has published a card to the same effect. The Tribune states the excitement had almost entirely abated. A

"One hundred and sixteen principal firms advertise to-day to take the notes of all Illinois stock-secured banks. No run on any bank yesterday, and the panic has subsided."

At Cincinnati the notes of the Mechanics' and Traders' Branch Bank are still taken by the Life and Trust Co., and it is supposed that bill-holders will less nothing. The State Bank of Obio will not, accoording to the opinion of Ohio bankers, be injured or discredited by the suspension of this Branch. The humediate cause of Geo. Milne & Co.'s suspension was the announcement to them of the impossibility of selling in the South a very large amount of time-bills on New-Orleans, which they had sent thither and drawn Orleans, which they had sent thither and drawn against at sight.

The St. Louis Republican says:

"In the present state of monetary affairs in the western, and we might add the eastern country, St. Louis occupies an enviable position. The financial whirlwind that is devastating Cincinnati, has not shaken the commercial foundations of this city. Firm in the integrity of our merchants, and the safety of our financial arrangements, we have nothing to fear."

The intimate business relations of Ohio with this City are many that shadows affects the financial con-

City are such, that whatever affects the financial condeep solicitude. There are four classes of Banks in First-The Independent Banks, eleven in number. Secondly—The Free Banks, thirteen in number. These classes are substantially the same, except that in case of an Independent Bank the capi-tal actually paid up, exclusive of bonds deposited, for circulation, must be at least $50,000 in each case, while Free Banks are only required to have $25,000 paid in. In the former, stockholders are not individnally liable, while in the latter they are by law made so. The notes of these Banks are all registered in the office of the Auditor of State, and are secured in every case by deposits of State stock of the State of Ohio, and of the United States, in no case above par. No other stocks, bonds or mortgages of any kind are used as a basis for banking in Ohio. Thirdly: "The old banks," so called, being two in number—the Ohio Life Insurance and Trust Com-pany, and the Bank of Circleville. The powers of the Trust Company to circulate notes having expired some years since, it has no limbilities for circulation. The Bank of Circleville has within a year or so changed owners, and is now mainly owned and man aged by a private banker of Circleville, of reputable stancing among his fellow-citizens. This Bank being the only one in Ohio having unlimited right to issue small notes, undertook to supply the demand created by the withdrawal of the small notes of other States. The appearance of large numbers of small notes created distrust at distant points, and caused such amounts to return that the Bank was forced temperarily to suspend. The means of the Bank are said to be ample, and invested almost entirely in commer-sial paper of abort date, and at Circleville its notes are received generally as money in business transac-tions. The Canton Bank of Columbus belonged to the last named class of banks. More than a year since the Bank was closed, and business continued by its leading stockholders, as private bankers, under the style of the "Clinton Bank." The larger portion of the old circulation has been retired. The new private firm are bound to redeem the outstanding notes. These gentlemen are represented to be men of the highest integrity, and of great wealth. It is believed by their friends that no circumstance can arise which will suspend the redemption of the notes of the Clinton Bank in coin. The fourth class are the branches of the State Bank of Ohio, which for capital and infinence greatly exceed all others. There are thirty-eight branches. The State Bank of Ohio is considered in Ohio as the soundest institution in the Union, and for the practical working of its machinery, nearer the perfection of a banking system than any other. The mother bank, or Board of Control, so called, is formed of members chosen by each branch, who have power according to the capital of their respective branches. They elect a President and Secretary not of their own body. They are a corporation, but have no capital, and doe no banking business except to control and invest the safety fund of the branches, and to watch over, restrain and closeup delinquent branches. They have no power in the local business of the branches, except so far as may be necessary to protect the public or other branches from loss growing out of imprudence or fraud. They have and exercise visitorial powers of the most rigid character, and are authorized to take instantaneous control of a suspected or failing branch. A branch has no power to indorse over a note or bill once discounted by it. Such indersement would be absolutely void. Any debt lying over for six months is required to be charged at once to profit and lose, and if the surplus fund is not large enough to bear it, the circulation must be at once reduced. Reports of the most minute character are made quarterly, under oath, giving the items in detail of every liability, and all assets of the banks, with the names of every maker or indorser of a note or bill held by the bank.

Monthly statements are also made of the general condition of the banks, and separate statements are made to the Auditor of State. The circulation of each branch is registered by the President of the State Bank, and can never exceed two for one of actual paid-up capital, and must be always supported by 30 F cent, of actual coin in the vault or en deposit in New-York or Philadelphia, subject to sight draft. The branches are bound for each other's circulation, and this circulation is always a legal tender in payment to any branch. The condition of the banks, as shown by their quarterly report, August 1, 1854, was as follows:

Specie Funds in New York &c Funds in New York &c Bank notes, other banks. Real setate. Other inventments. Separate safety fund, bonds and mortgages.	574,437 153,967	79 98 73 70

Branch at Cincinnati, is a small matter. It is merely the closing of a branch under the conservative powers of the controlling board. This branch has been in process of closing up for some time. In August last its capital had been reduced to $60,000, and its entire circulation to $47,339. The failure or the suspension of the principal owner of the bank, made it expedient to close it up. Deposits and circulation, we are informed, are paid without interruption. The people of Ohio were never in a more healthy condition, financially, than now. Traders, merchants and railroads are hard pressed for money, and must make great sacrifices, and many of them may per-haps fail. An abundance of money would, to such as have overtraded, only postpone awhile the day of reckening which so surely awaits them. The effect of the failure of private bankers will be much less than generally supposed. The quarterly statement of the Mutual Life Insurance Company gives the receipts of the company for the quarter at $161,340 55, and the disbursements of all kinds $106,064 29, showing a balance of $55,276 26, which, added to the amount on hand at the commencement of the quarter, makes the present assets amount to $2,674,622 60, the bulk of which is invested in bonds and mortgages. The amount at risk on the 1st inst. was $21,511,877 34, showing an increase of $402,450 for the quarter. The number of policies outstanding is 2,982, showing an increase of the fiscal year ending the 30th ult. amounts to $9,013,588, and the expenditures to $8,692,242, leaving a balance on hand of $321,346. Of this balance, $66,423 goes to the sinking fund and $155,079 to the Board of Public Works. Included in the receipts is the sum of $331,695, which was on hand at the commencement of the fiscal year.

The Pork Movement.—The increase in the movement of Pork from the West to the East forms an important item in the commerce of the country. At the opening of navigation in the spring, the increase was rapid, amounting in a few weeks to 10,000,000 lbs.; since then the increase has been steadily maintained.
